Pierre Dunoyer: vers le tableau

September 13th – October 26th, 2017

“I do not feel the right to name a drawing, to give it a conceptual orientation”
“Our emotions, are thoughts, our intuitions are the glaring truth”

Pierre Dunoyer

The Jean-Paul Najjar Foundation is pleased to announce, Vers le tableau, an exhibition featuring major works by French artist Pierre Dunoyer.

Vers le tableau explores Pierre Dunoyer's deep seeded interest in abstraction, one that is based on the concept of the tableau. Central to his approach, Dunoyer differentiates between 'tableau' and 'painting': tableau for him is the end result of painting one that not only questions the basic elements of abstraction but examines collective and universal concerns. Through composition, color, form and movement, Dunoyer's path to abstraction is steeped in art history, philosophy and the humanities. From the start of his artistic career in the 1970s as a member of the JANAPA Group, he has distinguished himself through an analytical discourse that has aligned him with conceptual artists Piet Mondrian, Ad Reinhardt and Robert Ryman.

Pierre Dunoyer has a philosophical approach to art. He seeks to produce works capable of turning seeing into thinking. Influenced early on in his career by Support-Surfaces (a French avant-garde modernist movement of the 20th century), the tableau becomes an object of thought or knowledge. Foregrounding the practice of painting at the expense of the subject and the relationship between color and form over pictorial space, Dunoyer has spent the past 35 years interrogating the specificity of the painted object insisting that the primary goal of the tableau is to be here in the present, an entity unto itself; it exists to tantalize the viewer and to question the purpose of its own existence. According to Pierre Dunoyer, “an analogy exists between Being and the tableau: just as Being is no single instance of being, so the tableau must be nothing determinate above and beyond its presence. In respect to Being, the tableau is a pure indeterminate presence, ‘a privileged beingness which...articulate being as different from the totality of all being’.”¹
